And So His Face Was Utterly Ruined

By BRIGGS

Cops on Right of Him
Cops on Left of Him.
But Ed Saw the Game

By Ed Adams

Sixteen cops, more or less, chasing a fellow up and down a grandstand during a football game demands some explanation and The Cluster editor has asked me for it.

Upon reaching the stadium a little late, I could not find an open gate and as the game was in progress decided to climb the wall, so I would miss as little of the game as possible.

An officer quickly informed me I had to leave. I produced my ticket and explained my trouble. He ignored my explanation, insisting that I should leave and enter by the gate, which being unreasonable, I refused to do. I asked him to take me to the gate and I would present my ticket, but there was no need of me climbing out of the park just to sooth the vanity of a policeman.

The officer called the sergeant, who not only insisted, but with the other officer grabbed me bodily with the intention of ejecting me forcibly. I managed to wriggle from their grasp and shot out down the grand stand and across the field with them hot at my heels.

The first officer cut me off from the stands, for I had gone around the playing field. I intended to loose them in the crowd but had to climb up the empty stand with him still following me. At almost the top he pulled out his black jack and ordered me to stop. This, above all, was no time to stop.

Running down the stand I leaped the railing, and out on the track again there was nothing between the crowd and me. But suddenly a form in a blue uniform emerged from the stand waving its hands as if attempting to stop a runaway horse. I tried to use the old Phoney Smith side step on him but my foot slipped.

Right here I want to ask where all those cops came from? When I got up (partly assisted) they were so thick around me I couldn't see the football game which all the time I had been watching out of the corner of my eye. Oh yes and HOW!

The student body on one side growling virulently and Mr. Herbert Smart on the other pleading saved the day for me. I am deeply grateful to them both and without their assistance I fear I would have been on the inside "looking out" instead of on the out side "looking in".

Guest, phoning from his room—Hey, night clerk.

Sarcnetic clerk—Well, what's biting you now?

Guest—That's what I want to know.
