Auxiliary

The complete organization of the local chapter of the Baptist Students Union was announced today, and plans for the coming year were completed.

The complete list of officers as announced were:

President, Searcy Garrison; Vice-President, John Clark; 2nd Vice-President, Doris Jacob; 3rd Vice-President, Carey Reese; 4th Vice-President, Leone Bates; Secretary, Solan Couch; Treasurer, Joe Jacob; Reporter, Robert Bale; Assistant Reporter, Miss Page Morton; Chorister, Cleveland Kiser; Pianist, Maimus Rawls; Devotional Leader, Howard Giddens.

Thus reinforced, and imbued with the spirit of consecrated determination further augmented by the inspiration of militant christian living as illustrated by Mr. Preston, the Mercer B. S. U. embarks upon a new era of meaning and helpfulness to the students of Mercer University, and is confident of unprecedented attainments and utility in the campus life.

The morning devotional services, fostered by the B. S. U., are having splendid representations and are a potent and vital source of enlightenment, inspiration and guidance, taking an integral place in the lives of those in attendance.

The recent Study Course, conducted by Mr. Preston and having an average attendance of fifty, has left its mark in giving the B. S. U. students of Mercer University a vision of effective christian living in scholastic life, and no time is being lost in making a concrete application of this need to present conditions.

The B. S. U. has found new headquarters on the second floor of the chapel annex. Dr. Dowell, in giving his consent for the use of this location, expressed his best wishes for the success of the Baptist Students Union in developing a deeper religious enthusiasm on the campus. The new quarters are being furnished and arranged by the ladies of the Mercer Auxiliary. Mrs. E. M. Potent and Mrs. Spright Dowell being unusually active in the work.

Baptist students are looking forward to the annual state convention of the Baptist Students Union to be held during the first week of November at Bessie Tift College. Searcy Garrison, president of the local B. S. U., stated recently that it was hoped that one hundred Mercer students would be present.

Bessie Tift to represent the University at the convention. John Clark and Bill Hatfield are in charge of enrollment of delegates and arrangements for their transportation.

The general theme for the program is: "Christ Liveth In Me," and the outstanding leaders in the religious life of the state and throughout the Southland have been engaged to appear. The Mercer Glee Club will present several numbers on the opening night of the convention.

"You've got to be a football hero to hold a beautiful girl" or at least so goes the current popular song hit. We dare not attempt to specify the concentrated amount of veracity in that statement. Perhaps this is an adequate explanation for our trouble through the past years along that line of endeavor, but to say that if this is true relegates us to the realms of the disillusioned is putting it mild, for we thought it was "B. O." all along, and now that we are faced with a grim disappointment just as we thought that we might be able to remedy the situation since we hear they are giving away, absolutely free, life-sized cakes of "B. O. Elimino" (Lifebuoy to you freshmen), and all of our troubles would be over and we could get a job and a girl. (We know this is true because we saw it in a magazine ad!)

And now the Mercer team, reflecting the true spirit of our progressive institution, of "semper alterior" (which to you'se guys without culture means "going you one better" or in this instance it is possible under article 3, rule 8; section R, and paragraph (1) to translate it "not willing to let well enough alone") makes a rule for obtaining a position on the team which in turn entitles you to be a football hero which in turn again (making three times you have turned by now) entitles you to hold beautiful girls, to wit (less: He who would be a BEAR of the first order must be red-headed or blond whether by nature or by whatever measures are necessary to present such an appearance. And ah what a lovely sight it is to see our beautiful bevy of blond Bears as they embark to take the measure of some fearsome opponent, or return from such encounter with the laurels of victory, to say nothing of battered bodies, blue bruises, and a varied assortment of mashed or broken bones. Really, our team should go down in history as the raging, rampaging, romping, routing, repercussive, redoubtable, resolute reds whose flaming mops (pardon us—tops) symbolize the torch of victory as they march down the gridiron field of battle to triumph.

And think of the fun the sport announcers would have—Instead of wondering whether that was Zinkowsky, Trommerhauser, or Popoko who made that last touchdown, he might describe a play like this: Red made a beautiful pass from center to Red who spun half-way around and handed the leather to Red on a spinner who ran through the fine hole opened by Red and Red and following the splendid interference of Red and Red ran for a touchdown. Or like this: The ball goes to Red who fades back to pass. The tackle breaks through but Red blocks him out. Red is still trying to decide whether the ball should go to Red or Red or possibly Red. There it goes, a beautiful pass. It's going to Red—no, it looks like Red is going to take it. Yes, Red is coming up fast—he's got it and he's off with Red and Red running an interference that looks impossible to break through. The halves and safety man are coming in on Red. Will he make it? Red took out that first man neatly and now Red takes out that other half with a fine block. Red is open now with just one man between him and the goal-line. What snake-hips Red has and he's using them with his best efforts this time, and he's eluded that last man and now he's over for the score. Nice work, Red!

And now he's a hero and can hold beautiful girls. And so, all you'se boys and all you'se gals, we boys will render as our last selection, "You've got to be a red-headed football hero to hold a beautiful girl," at least at Mercer.

RESOLUTIONS

Make more positive resolutions regarding the things you wish to accomplish. The best means of impressing new resolutions upon your mind is by concentration, iteration, and vigorous assertion. At the close of every day review your thoughts and actions, and know precisely what you have done with your new resolutions. It is a great thing to conceive a great idea, but it is still greater to put it into execution.—Greenville Kleiser.

one wonders what it is they really sit on.

The North Dakota students have condemned their football schedule for the year as "Sionxside." Ours, one might say, is more or less "Mercer-nary." Yeah, one might say. ('Smatter, Throckmorton, too deep for you?)

In the Aquin we find this "pep" filler: "The Cadets will Meet the Johnnies Here Today." They must be "regular" fellows. Anyway, we think that's carrying military discipline too far. There are some things you just can't do by the numbers.

Someone asked Tony Mazzionetti, Notre Dame's hope for an All-American, what he thought of "Fighting Irish." Tony replied that he didn't think you ought to fight anybody on account of his ancestry. No, he didn't, either, I just made that up as I went along.

Looking backward through the files of the Cluster, we find a quip in the issue of Oct. 10, 1924, which reads: "One typewriter in the Cluster office turns out copy with no 'n.'" Added in parenthesis is the notation, "This is deep." The entire staff puzzled for ten minutes over this crack, and no one could get the point. If anyone can fathom it, please call at the office and explain to us, because we are all alarmed for our senses of humor.

A sensible

We wanted to sell it for 10 cents so we put Granger in a sensible soft foil pouch—easy to carry and keeps the tobacco just exactly right—just like it was made.

Granger... good tobacco... Wellman Method... cut right... packed right. And there is this much about it:

We have yet to know of a man who started to smoke Granger who didn't keep on. Folks seem to like it.
