

RAMBLIN'

By ROY RHODENHISER

In keeping with the policy of this column, that is the policy of variety, we are presenting an exclusive interview with Mr. Nat Reasor, thespian.

When basketball season came to an end, everyone thought that Nat Reasor, the boy from the hills of Virginia, would no longer participate in extra-curricular activities, but they were wrong, for the day he laid aside the last athletic uniform that he will wear for Mercer, Nat tried out for the latest opus of the Mercer Dramatic Club, "Here Comes Charlie," and his ability as an actor won for him one of the major parts of this new comedy. Every student at Mercer knows Nat, so we will not take up space describing his personal appearance, but will proceed with the interview.

Our first question to Nat was, "How do you like being an actor?" "Just fine! I reckon some of my folks musta been actors, cause the acting fever is in my blood," replied Nat.

"Do you like it better than being an athlete," was our next question.

"Wall," answered Nat, "I don't reckon that you can compare the two as they are so different."

The rest of the interview brought out these facts—Nat doesn't like Mae West (horrors!); If he is successful on the stage Nat will retain his own name; his highest ambition is to play the role of the romantic hero, (and what actor hasn't this ambition). Nat will not sing in this production, but hopes to be able to thrill the audience with his melodious voice in his next vehicle.

"We wish you luck Nat! Don't forget to send us your autograph when you get in pictures."

How many of youse guys and youse gals knew that we had a couple of students who hold Master Seamen papers? It's a fact, Mr. Noble Bowlby of New Hampshire and Florida, and Mr. Brown of Alabama, have sailed the stormy seas, and are full-fledged seamen. Both are students in the Mercer School of Law.

Personal to Gonna Tell; Keep on trying to razz us, for to use the words of another famous American, Abraham Lincoln, "It does you lots of good, and does us little harm."

Since the publication of our Radio Ramblin' we have had several requests to write another one so here goes . . . Jan Garber hails from Atlanta, Georgia, huh? . . . I have located the old estate of the Picken sisters, and its proximity to Mercer surprised me. . . Ben Bernie was born Benjamine Ancel . . . Eddie Cantor, George Jessel, and Walter Winchell started their careers together in The Regent Theatre, a frowsy, seedy, and ramshackle movie shack on 115th Street in Harlem . . . Rudy Valee and Bing Crosby have brothers who have formed a club for the brothers of famous people . . . Mae West was ready to go on the air recently, when her would be sponsor changed his mind, he feared that she might shock the radio audience . . . When East and Dumke known as the Sisters of the Skillet go on the air they do not use a prepared script, but make up their lines as they go along . . . The Mills Brothers are the sons of a barber . . . Phil Baker and Ben Bernie were once vaudeville partners.

The drawing up of plans for the annual B. S. U. Spring retreat, which is to be held on Mercer campus this year, has been a factor in the work of council of the group.

It was announced that Robert Bale had been selected as assistant editor for the state B. S. U. newspaper which is being edited in Athens.

The new assembly room of the group has been received with much favorable comment by both students and visitors from various parts of the state.

It's about as good as a tobacco pouch

"THIS Granger package is what I call good common sense. It's just about as good as a tobacco pouch.

"Here's what I mean—it keeps the tobacco right, and you can fold it up smaller after every pipe. That makes it handy to carry.

"And I want to put in a word for the tobacco while I'm at it. Granger keeps a pipe clean as a whistle, and man, it is cool.

"I want to say Granger is just about the best tobacco I ever smoked."
