PASS IN REVIEW

By ROY RHODENHISER

In order to give the readers something different and to break the monotony of reading only one writer's style, we are using items clipped from the exchange columns of other college papers.

At Northwestern University you can't date girls who wear little yellow ribbons pinned to their dress their explanation:

The yellow ribbon signifies that she is a member of the Cloister club, an organization of girls whose boy friends are not on the campus, and that she does not desire the attentions of any other man.

Neatest Trick of the Week Department—Two prominent athletes of Northwestern U. (Boston) lacked the wherewithal to purchase the necessary flowers for a formal function. A violent storm being in process, they prevailed upon a student to call the girls, and in disguised voice inform them that the florist was calling, and that the flowers could not be delivered because of the storm. The gentlemen arrived, and professed indignation at the lack of flowers. (Try it sometime, if you can find the storm.)

On the Northwestern campus is a sign outside a church which reads "Do you know what Hell is?" Underneath are these words: "Come in and hear our organist."

Spring Festival Dances Underway Here This Week

Tea Dance and Night Affair Saturday Wind Up Series of Social Affairs

ATTENDANCE GOOD

The second in the series of dances sponsored by the Greek Letter Association of Macon for the Annual Little Commencement Dances will be held at ten o'clock to-night at the Dempsey Hotel, with Jack Stern's ten-piece Orchestra furnishing the music.

The first of the Spring Festival Dances was held last night with many Mercer students and their dates in attendance. This was one of the most colorful dances given by the Pan Hellenic Council this year and a larger crowd is expected tonight.

There will be two dances Saturday: a tea dance from five to seven and a dance at night from nine to mid-night.

Most of the fraternities are holding open house some time during the week-end for the brothers and their guests.

McDonald Speaks Before Theologs

Committee is Appointed to Arrange Social For Ministerial Association

One of the most inspiring and helpful meetings of the year was enjoyed by the Ministerial Association Tuesday night, when Dr. Frank McDonald, pastor of Woodlawn Baptist Church, Birmingham, Ala., spoke to a large audience of students and friends. He was introduced by Dr. Dowell.

Dr. McDonald's message, in substance, was: "What I would do if I were a Young Man Again Just starting in the Ministry." In enlarging upon that thought, he said that the minister, above all, should "Be Himself" both in the pulpit and out: "I would be human at all times," he declared.

During the course of his address Dr. McDonald said the greatest avenue for success is to love people.

At the close of this talk, he gave the students the opportunity to ask questions concerning problems which were facing them in their church work. This proved to be (Continued on Page Four)

BANQUET SET

Mercer's varsity basketball squad will wind up the season with a banquet tonight at the New Yorker, as guests of coach Jimmy Slocum, it was announced yesterday by Roy Rhodenhiser, team manager.

Eight players who will receive sweaters for outstanding work during the season include NeSmith, Stanford, Wasden, Hazlehurst, Bloodworth, Allen, Porter and Hall.

Others who will attend the affair include coach Lake Russell, Major J. D. Blair, director of Athletics, Robert M. (Bob) Gamble, Warwick Norris and Roy Rhodenhiser.

Pastor Stresses Value of Friends

Dr. Frank McDonald, Birmingham Minister, Heard at Mercer Chapel Wednesday

The world will take notice of one through friendships he forms, Dr. Frank McDonald, pastor of the Woodlawn Baptist Church, Birmingham, Ala., told faculty and students of Mercer at the university chapel hour shortly before noon Wednesday.

"What would a fellow do without his friends," he queried after having recounted a number of instances in his life in which friendship had helped him to success or happiness.

He scored the person who considers himself a self-made man.

"Poor little fellow. He never stops to take into consideration the numbers of people who have made the way easier for him through friendships that he has formed on the way up the ladder."

John Watson Cited

He opened his talk with a brief review of the life of John Watson, a Scotch preacher, and how he almost gave up the ministry in a moment of discouragement when he was beginning his career.

"John Watson was driven from the assistant pastorate of a big (Continued on Page Four)

Theologs Engage In Mission Effort

Deputation Trips Being Made By Members Interested in Religious Work

Several of the students interested in religious activities have been making deputation trips lately. The group or members of the group have visited and held religious services at the Bibb County Jail, the Salvation Army Hall, the Community House of the Bibb Manufacturing Company on Ogleshorpe Street, the County Stockade, and several churches for various sorts of services.

Members of the ministerial Quartet assist in furnishing the special music. Those who compose the quartet are: Joe Brown, first tenor; Earle Stirewalt, second tenor; James Windham, baritone; and Jesse Waller, bass. Members of the team who have visited various institutions in the county and assisted in the services are Fred Lommachinsky, Miss Maude Cobb, Miss Dorothy Wall, Mr. Wilma Peters, Carl Sanders, and Maines Rawls.

Anyone who would like to share this pleasure of visiting different places in or near Macon and conducting these religious services, please see Fred Lommachinsky.

CLASSIC PLAYERS HERE ON MONDAY

Mercer Faculty Planning Plays

College Auxiliary to Sponsor Program in Chapel Early in April

Rehearsals have begun for the first dramatic performance ever to be given in the newly-equipped Mercer chapel. This production consists of two one-act plays, A Night at an Inn and The New Moon, which are to be given in early April under the sponsorship of the Mercer auxiliary.

Selection of the casts of characters has been made from the faculty and students and rehearsals are now in progress, according to Mrs. Joseph Robinson, auxiliary president.

A Night at an Inn, a melodrama by Lord Dunsany, is being coached by Mrs. Guyton Abney. The cast is as follows: Dr. H. F. Wright, Kenneth Cameron, Prof. Robert Shermer, Dr. G. G. Quarles, Lake Russell, Roy Rhodenhiser, Hunter Hurst and Dr. Thomas Wade.

The New Moon, by Telfair Peet, is a fantasy based on nursery rhyme and is under the direction of Miss Alma Sheridan. The cast is as follows: Al Davino, Mrs. Robert Shermer, Miss Betty Stansbury, Harry Marshall, Guyton Carr, Elliott Lawton, Holt Gewinner, Miss Josephine Early, Miss Hazel Hays, John Callaway, Dr. E. E. Overton, and Jay Goldstein.

PIPE-SMOKING IS MANLY ART REPORTER NORRIS DECLARES

Co-ed Writer Charmed With The Variety of Pipes Seen on Campus

By Emma Norris

Do you take part in the most manly of all manly habits?—I should say arts! Pipe smoking is now the rage, so to prove you're as good a man as the rest you must get a pipe and start puffing away.

You have proved that you can take it when you stand the smell for five minutes. For further information, see such professionals as Will Johnson, Walter Godwin or Tim Callaway.

I thought the boys had taken up pipe-smoking and laid aside the ciggies to keep from setting their toothbrush mustaches on fire from the "ducks", but there is one young man who sports a pipe with such a short stem that he is in danger

Dramatic Players Now On Southern Tour At Present

Shakespeare Characters to be Delineated by Bob Jones, Jr. Actor-Director

SHOW RATES HIGH

Blue Key, Cardinal Key Sponsor Appearance of group From Cleveland, Tenn.

Several famous Shakespearean characters will be portrayed here by The Classic Players in the Mercer chapel auditorium Monday night it was announced yesterday.

The Classic Players, a dramatic organization from the Bob Jones College, Cleveland, Tenn., is headed by Bob Jones, Jr., acting head of the college, and an actor of several years experience in the execution of Shakespeare characters.

Frats Sponsor

His appearance here will be sponsored by the Blue Key and the Cardinal Key, upperclass honor societies on the campus.

Admission prices have been set at 25 cents for adults and 10 cents for children under 12. Time for the performance has been set at 8:30, it was announced.

Montgomery Tonight

The Players will open in Montgomery, Ala., tonight, at the Sidney Lanier auditorium. The organization is at present on its southern tour, and the reception accorded it elsewhere has been highly favorable.

Mr. Jones has served for six years as actor and director of the group, and during that time has specialized in character portrayal from Shakespearean tragedies. Among his best interpretations which will probably be on the program Monday night are character delineations of Hamlet, Othello, and MacBeth.

Has Soloist

He will be assisted by a soloist, who will sing during the intermissions. An accompanist and stage manager will also be in the party.

The Classic Players will be the first organization of its kind to make use of the new stage equipment recently installed in the Mercer (Continued on Page 4)

MARSHALL VOTED SECRETARY AT REGIONAL FRAT MEETING

Mercer Student Named Officer At Recent Convention of Pi Kappa Alpha

Harry Marshall, Macon, president of the Mercer Chapter of the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity, was elected secretary of the Regional convention of the fraternity which met in Atlanta last week-end. Nine schools in Georgia, Florida, and Alabama were represented by delegates at the convention.

Delegates from the Mercer chapter were Harry Marshall, Willie Smith, Don Hunter, John Callaway, and Ed Bernd.

SENIORS

Tardy About Ordering Rings, Invitations, Lee Says

Orders for senior rings and invitations are coming in with discouraging slowness, Bob Lee, class president, announced Monday. Only a small number of students have ordered rings, and the demand for invitations has not come up to expectations, he said.

"Most of the students will regret not ordering invitations when graduation time comes around, but it will be too late then. They must be ordered now, or purchased at scalper prices by students who have bought up a lot in expectation of the demand from those who have not ordered, or have failed to order enough."
