

GI STUDENT—John J. Van Liempd of Oakland, Calif., has finally achieved an ambition to become an art student.

Why Be Failure?

 his classmates and his studies. He is a frequent visitor with the counselors at the Center.
 "I believe," said John Von Liempd, "there is good and bad in everything. All countries, all men must be progressive. I feel that all veterans should go through the guidance procedure. I do not mean that every person should go to college. I do not mean that a person thrown upon his own resources in middle life, can overnight make himself efficient in a vocation or college course for which he has no aptitudes or interests for. I do not mean that he or she will be able to attack a course of study with all the vigor of an adolescent boy or girl. But he can get back some of his old time facility if he will, and this is the important thing to be assured of.

 "Of course, I must give credit to Mr. Maffeo, my guidance counselor, Mr. Rainey, the guidance director and Dean Burts of the student body, for giving me the breaks. Then too, if it had not been for the Veterans Administration, I would still be on the level of an 8th grade student and, in all probabilities never recall: there are opportunities in America, the kind of opportunities dreamed of by many in the Old Country"

John Von Liempd has already endeared himself on the campus the campus through his drawings during the recent young peoples religious program. His drawings won a prize of $25. Of course his professors and classmates learned to know John by the appeal depicted in his work of art.
 Because of his memories of his native home he plans to build a dam on his 110 acres and duplicate a "little Holland" as a part of his farm. He hopes to be able to complete his art training and communicate each day to his art classes in Macon, for this part of mother earth he will practice on.
