Phi Deltas Plan Big Week-End In Celebration Of Founder's Day

Not to be outdone by the KA's with their Old South Ball or the SAE's with their big week-end, the Phi Delta Thetas have big plans in mind for the coming week-end. From the looks of things one night formals are beginning to be things of the past and week-end affairs are taking over.

Beginning on Friday the Phi Deltas will initiate several lowly Phikieahs. At 6:30 a stag fish fry will be given in honor of these new brothers, to which the alumni have been invited. Then on Saturday at noon Miss Blanche Mallory, sponsor, and her brother, Ed, will give a barbecue for actives, alumni, and their guests at the Mallory Lodge, Lake Koola. Saturday evening there will be a stag banquet at which Lenton Collins, prominent Phi Delta Theta alumni formerly with the Department of Justice in Washington, D. C., will be guest speaker. Following this banquet the Founder's Day Ball will begin at 9:00 in the Walter Little Room of the Hotel Dempsey. Climaxing the week-end of events will be a breakfast at the Green Lawn.

By then, a tired but happy group will make their way home.

SCENES 'ROUND AND 'BOUT

J. W. Holland wearing big smiles at time for ATO dance and arrival of Mary drew near . . . Betty Burks dating Bob Mathews for ATO dance while Lovonia Fuqua dated Larry Lowe. Gus Stotts presenting numerous new dance steps last Friday and Saturday nights . . . Betty "B" and Jimmy Hiers making small talk in Co-op . . . Dynamite King and Jeanette still going strong . . . Dee Gardner being seen with a different boy each time . . . Fred Kelly taking Teresa Rett out.

Gene Hall making big plans for Sigma Nu White Star Ball with Ruth Dunwody as his date . . . New talent at SAE being brought out as Charlie Miller and Jack Petty perform at the piano and drums while Dan Edge recites his version of Nursery Rhymes . . . John Hyde and Joan Mills being seen together quite often.

IT SEEMS . . .
that Dick Sandford, Billy Leggett, and Brad Newsome, have their future all planned for them.

that Marion Hall keeps all his charms to himself. Could be that he has a girl elsewhere, 'tho.

that Liz Camp has been in good spirits the past few days . . . must be because Roy put in an appearance last week.

CONGRATULATIONS:

to Ann Harris and George who have made up for the third time—it must be love or something like that to make them keep coming back.

Fashion Footnotes . . .

by Becky Watson

This week-end was the time for many tres gay parties, leaving the breath of spring quite breathless from exciting and ceaseless activity. Pretty party dresses were every where, whirling in springlike fashion.

Looking particularly cute and petite was Ann Mintz, in a pale, placid aqua dotted swiss evening dress, which was strapless with full, gathered skirt. Scallops were formed at the bottom where the skirt was caught up in several places with aqua roses, revealing an underskirt of rustling taffeta ruffles.

Marion Edwards looked quite "fatchig" in sophisticated black net. A small black lace ruffle accented the strapless top, and the fitted bodice, which tapered in the front into a pointed waistline, gave that finished fashionable touch.

Mary Jean Smith made a charming center for an old-fashioned portrait in her nursery-white organdy dress, tied at the waist with narrow purple velvet ribbon, with a bunch of dainty flowers at the bow. The neckline was edged in narrow lace, and the billowy skirt was a mass of elegant ruffles all the way from the waist to the floor.

Nancy Hart Miller in snowy white taffeta, looked as pretty as a nymph of spring. Her neckline was framed by ruffles of white net and a sparkling rhinestone necklace. The back of the dress was highlighted by a gay green bow on the waist, with the ends swerving down the full skirt. The entire effect was simple in form, but lovely in style and design.

SAE's End Round Of Festivities With Violet Ball

By Ellen Willis

The round of festivities given last week-end by the Georgia Psi Chapter of Sigma Alpha Epsilon ended with a Violet Ball given by the alumni, on Saturday night at the Walter Little room. Jesse Duckworth's orchestra played, and receiving the guests were President Radford King and Miss Jeanette Wiggins; Bob Rose and Miss Dorothy Andrews; Hal Boswell and Miss Anita Drinnon; and James Clegg and Miss Evelyn McArthur, sponsor for the local chapter.

The door to the ballroom was lined with a trellis covered with smilax and violets. Palms lined the bandstand and the corners of the room. Large paper mache violets, complete with stems and leaves, mounted on many yards of yellow cloth, formed the effective background. The floor was lighted with blue lights, and a series of fluffy clouds were suspended from the ceiling from which hung garlands of violets and cherubs made of molded lace. As the guests entered, the orchestra played "It's Raining Violets." And added delight of the dances which led to the exchange dances which lead to the exchange of dancing partners.

A banquet preceded the dance for members, alumni, and their guests. The speakers' table, composed of the officers and their dates, was centered with a gold lion, the gift of the fraternity mascot, Stockton Jones. Circling the lion and lining the entire length of the table were purple and yellow flowers entwined with greenery. Each girl found a favor beside her plate. A prophecy was read by Tommy Olmstead and Frank Jones. Miss Evelyn McArthur, sponsor, was presented an orchid in appreciation of her work for the chapter, and Miss Ann Mintz, pledge sweetheart, was also recognized.

Fraternity songs were sung by the group, after which members and their guests went into the ballroom for dancing.

Alpha Tau Omega Gives Annual Spring Formal

By J. W. Holland

Alpha Zeta Chapter of Alpha Tau Omega Fraternity gave its annual spring formal last Friday evening, April 8. Jolin Hinton furnished the music with an unusually good performance, and, needless to say, everyone spent a most enjoyable evening.

The theme was built around Alpha Tau Omega Heraldry, with the coat of arms playing a large part in the decorations. The back drop consisted of white muslin overlaid with a strip of black and accented with a huge fraternity shield made of blue and gold tinfoil. In each window was also a shield on a somewhat smaller scale. To the right of the bandstand two knights in armor with lances crossed stood on a grass covered platform. The bandstand was surrounded by potted palms, and a huge ATO in gold and blue tinfoil decorated either side. From the balcony were hung twelve ATO pennants also done in blue and gold. A large basket of gladiolas stood on either side of the door in the lobby.

Alumnus John Hemingway announced the leadout which, after passing over the platform already mentioned, formed the letter "T" with three stars. The leadout was terminated by a special arrangement of "ATO Sweetheart" by John Hinton.

Following the dance a breakfast at Fay's was given for the members and their dates.

Epsilon on April 6 are: Bobby Baynard, Macon; Jim Burnett, Newport, Tenn.; Charlie Miller, Macon; and Jimmy Moughan, Gray.

The Sigma Nu's held an Old West party at Ingleside Community Club last Saturday night in honor of six new brothers: Charlie Andrew, Atlanta; Billy Higgins, Albany; Jack Perry, Atlanta; Jimmy Maddox, LaGrange; and Jack Jenkins, Macon.
