

Spain
28th July 1863

Dear Sir,

The head stone intended for the grave of your son was not removed by Mr Huggen & myself from the grave over which it was placed by mistake. We thought it best at the time that Mr T. should notify some friend of yours in the army that he expected to see on his return there of the mistake. We placed a bayonet considerably below the surface at the head of the grave of your son so that any one digging the ground with the dig = gram below could find it. If you postpone moving the body till I return to Richmond in Decr I will cheerfully go to the ground and point out the grave.

Yours truly
D. Stewart

There is no grave between the grave where the Head Stone is, and your sons grave. and a straight line drawn from one to the other runs diagonally across the field. I think they are not one hundred feet apart -
- and they are nearer to the pine thicket than they are, either to the woods or to the road leading by Mr McEhees old place - your sons grave is between the other grave and the pine thicket, and right by the side of an old cart way which by this time can hardly be traced

Henry Brown