MERCER LAW REVIEW

“Georgia’s Oldest Law Review”

Mercer Law Review is published four times a year: Fall, Winter, Spring, and Summer. Since its inception in 1949, Mercer Law Review has served as an invaluable aid to practitioners as well as providing a great service to the academic community.

This year’s issues:

Volume 69, Number 1: ANNUAL SURVEY OF GEORGIA LAW—A review of recent decisions in major areas of Georgia Law. This year’s Survey consists of eighteen survey articles, including Administrative Law, Commercial Transportation, Criminal Law, Evidence, Real Property, and Trial Practice and Procedure. This year’s Survey also includes a Special Contribution article detailing recent changes in premises liability and apportionment of fault.

Volume 69, Number 2: ARTICLES—An open forum for the exploration of topics of current interest. The articles in this year’s publication include one analyzing the constitutionality of a sub-clause of Georgia’s business venue statute, as construed in 2016, and another exploring the constitutionality of Georgia’s anti-SLAPP statute. Additionally, this edition includes an article about the future and importance of a key tool in the struggle for racial equity—federal habeas corpus as a post-conviction remedy, and another critically analyzing the health insurance system’s effects on small businesses.

Volume 69, Number 3: LEAD ARTICLES—Lead Articles Symposium on “Disruptive Innovation in Criminal Defense.” This Symposium explores existing and imaginable innovations in criminal defense that would depart from, and ideally disrupt, conventional ways of doing things. The speakers were invited to examine and propose innovations in individual representations, in the broad-scale delivery of legal services, and at other levels. In other words, this Symposium asks what can be done differently that will make a difference in criminal defense. Additionally, it explores the legal, political, and other barriers to innovation. Finally, the Symposium considers the implications of this inquiry for teaching and scholarship.

Volume 69, Number 4: ELEVENTH CIRCUIT SURVEY—A review of recent decisions in major areas of federal law in the Eleventh Circuit. The survey consists of articles on Admiralty, Bankruptcy, Class Actions, Commercial Transportation, Electronic Discovery, Employment Discrimination, Environmental Law, Evidence, Federal Taxation, Healthcare, Labor and Employment, as well as a special contribution on Zoning and Land Use.

Cumulative Index—As a service to the Review’s readership, the Mercer Law Review published a cumulative index covering Volumes 1-56. The Index is divided into seven sections: an Author Index; an Index to the Annual Survey of Georgia Law; an Index to Former Fifth Circuit and Current Eleventh Circuit Law; a Table of Cases Noted; a Title Index to Leads and Articles Edition; a Title Index to Student Comments and Notes; and a Topical Index to Lead & Articles Editions, Special Contributions, and Student Articles.

MERCER UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF LAW

GENERAL INFORMATION. Mercer University School of Law is located in Macon, Georgia, 80 miles south of Atlanta. Mercer Law School has been graduating practice-ready lawyers who uphold the highest ideals of the legal profession since 1873. Our distinguishing attributes include the deliberate choice to be smaller, the innovative curriculum that focuses on preparing students for practice, the excellent and accessible faculty and staff, and the close-knit culture that makes learning enjoyable and success attainable.

DEGREES AWARDED. The study of law at Mercer University School of Law consists of a three-year program directed toward the J.D. degree. A joint J.D.-M.B.A. program is offered in conjunction with Mercer's Stetson School of Business and Economics. In addition, the law school offers a Business Certificate Program and a Legal Writing Certificate Program. Please see our website for more details at www.law.mercer.edu.

ADMISSIONS. As a top provider of legal education, Mercer Law School is selective in admissions. Our process aims to select from the applicant pool students who will contribute to our academic community during their three years of legal education and, ultimately, to society and the legal profession. At Mercer Law School, we consider many factors in evaluating an applicant's potential both in law school and for becoming a competent and ethical attorney. Some of these factors include a LSAT score, undergraduate GPA, grade trends, letters of recommendation, personal statement, employment history, undergraduate course of study, community and military service, advanced degrees, leadership ability, personal hardships, and other relevant background information. Persons interested in applying for admission to the Mercer University School of Law may access information at www.law.mercer.edu or email the Admissions Office at admissions@law.mercer.edu.

LAW LIBRARY. The Furman Smith Law Library has a staff of thirteen, including six professional librarians. The librarians provide extensive instruction in both print and electronic research as part of the curriculum. The library's collection includes over 350,000 volumes in books and microforms as well as a wide array of legal and non-legal electronic resources. Carrels, tables, soft seating, "smart" study rooms and a technology lounge are available to law students. Throughout the library and law school, students have wireless access to the library and law school network via their personal laptops. The library's web site features an extensive collection of annotated links to Georgia and federal legal research materials. For more information about the library visit www.law.mercer.edu/library.

CAREER SERVICES OFFICE. Employers who are interested in interviewing students and graduates of the Mercer University School of Law are invited to contact the Career Services Office. Upon request, the Career Services Office will be happy to forward resumes, arrange on-campus interviews, or assist employers in any other way. Employers may contact the Career Services Office at (478)301-2615, via email at careerservices@law.mercer.edu, or post a job directly from our website at <http://law.mercer.edu/career/employers/>
